

Item #74 (Eve in a Contemporary Setting)

Adam and Eve as presented in the Book of Genesis are a myth that is mainly true. Just recently Eve appeared again in the form of a highly placed national politician in the United States. Said politician is a self-professed believing member of the Catholic Church. But she stated publicly (if reports in the press are to be believed) that she had no need of the Church to tell her what was good and what was evil: she herself was capable of making this judgment—in the matter on hand, abortion. Eve acting against God's command by taking this judgment into her own hands and thus usurping a prerogative of God. This assessment is made by the undersigned with the presumption that this contemporary Eve would agree. He apologizes if this assessment is incorrect or is based on a false report. (James Swetnam, July 28, 2021)
